SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE

A GUIDE TO BASIC PUBLICATIONS

Paul L. Horecky, Editor

This annotated area guide presents a judicious evaluation of those writings which are particularly relevant to the contemporary political, socioeconomic, and intellectual life of Southeastern Europe. Specifically, the focus is on the lands and peoples of Albania, Bulgaria, Greece, Romania, and Yugoslavia.

More than fifty distinguished scholars and specialists have contributed to this undertaking. Selecting from an abundant corpus of published information, they have produced an annotated list of those books and articles which expert opinion finds both topical and essential to an understanding of the complexities of Southeastern Europe. More than 3,000 bibliographic entries are presented, together with additional citations for collateral reading. The entries include basic publications in the languages indigenous to the respective areas as well as sources in Russian and in the major Western languages, particularly English. A selection of publications which offer a panoramic view of the area as a whole is presented in the opening part. This new reference work will be of value to area specialists, researchers, and librarians.

The study was sponsored by the Subcommittee on East Central and Southeast European Studies (of the American Council of Learned Societies and the Social Science Research Council) with the support of the United States Office of Education.

PAUL L. HORECKY earned a doctoral degree in law and political science in his native Czechoslovakia and was graduated from the Soviet Area Studies Program at Harvard University, where he was also associated with the Russian Research Center. He served as a trial attorney with the United States Department of the Army at the Nürnberg trials from 1947 to 1949. At present he is Assistant Chief and East European Specialist of the Slavic and Central European Division of the Library of Congress. He is author or editor of a number of monographs and articles on Russian and East European affairs, including East Central Europe: A Guide to Basic Publications, a companion volume to the present book, Basic Russian Publications: A Selected and Annotated Bibliography on Russia and the Soviet Union, and Russia and the Soviet Union: A Bibliographic Guide to Western-Language Publications, all published by The University of Chicago Press.

A. OVERVIEW

2644. Adamic, Louis. The Native's Return. New York, Harper, 1934. 370 p. Illus.

Account of social conditions in Yugoslavia in the '30s, after a return visit by a Slovene immigrant to America, with interesting observations on the impact of the depression in Slovenia and on the growth of Belgrade.

2645. Auty, Phyllis. Yugoslavia. In Warriner, Doreen, ed. Contrasts in Emerging Societies; Readings in the Social and Economic History of South-Eastern Europe in the Nineteenth Century. Bloomington, Indiana University Press, 1965. p. 281-387.

Brings together valuable sources on rural life, including previously unpublished archival data. Together with Jozo Tomasevich's Peasants, Politics, and Economic Change in Yugoslavia (Stanford, 1955), provides basic historical information for understanding Yugoslavia's socio-economic structure.

2646. Balch, Emily Greene. Our Slavic Fellow Citizens. New York, Charities Publication Committee, 1910. 536 p.

Information on the social life of Slovenes, Croats, and Dalmatians in their home setting and their subsequent adaptation in the United States early in the 20th century.

* See also chapter 46, section B.

2647. Barić, Lorraine. Traditional Groups and New Economic Opportunities in Rural Yugoslavia. In Firth, Raymond, ed. Themes in Economic Anthropology. London, New York, Tavistock Publications, 1967. p. 253-278.

Attempts to isolate social variables associated with low productivity and low investment in agriculture in Yugoslavia. See also Alexander Vucinich's "Rural Yugoslavia" in Rural Sociology, v. 12, 1947, no. 3: 237-245, for an assessment of the agrarian reforms in the immediate postwar period.

2648. Belgrade. Institut društvenih nauka. Odeljenje za naučnu dokumentaciju. Bibliografska anotacija dela empirijskog karaktera iz oblasti društvenih nauka (Bibliographic annotations on empirical works in the social sciences). Beograd, 1964. 294 p. (Mimeographed)

Limited to Serbo-Croat materials in the postwar period. The Institut društvenih nauka, Centar za istraživanje javnog mnjenja, in Belgrade, published between 1964 and 1966 a series of monographs on public opinion surveys of such topics as standard of living, work conditions, impact of mass communications, and economic reforms.

2649. Blagojević, Borislav, ed. Collection of Yugoslav Laws. Belgrade, Institute of Comparative Law.

See v. 1, Legal Status of Agricultural Land, 1962, 91 p.; v. 4, Family Law, 1962, 61 p.; v. 10, Inheritance Law, 1964, 78 p.

2650. Brown, Alec. Yugoslav Life and Landscape. London, Elek, 1954. 196 p.

A perceptive description of Yugoslav society by a writer who spent over 30 years in close association with the area.

2651. Coon, Carleton S. Racial History. In Kerner, Robert J., ed. Yugoslavia. Berkeley, University of California Press, 1949. p. 24-32.

2652. Čulibrk, Svetozar. Želje i strahovanja naroda Jugoslavije (Hopes and fears of the people of Yugoslavia). Grebo, Zlata. Želje i strahovanja Jugoslavenske žene (Hopes and fears of the Yugoslav woman). Beograd, Institut društvenih nauka, 1965. 354 p.

These two related studies form part of an international survey on happiness and consider the relationships among factors of economic position, health, and social status and how they influence personal and national aspirations of individuals. Nationality differences are discussed. Brief English summary. The data are also discussed in Hadley Cantril's The Pattern of Human Concerns (New Brunswick, N.J., Rutgers University Press, 1965, 427 p.).

2653. Dedijer, Vladimir. The Beloved Land. London, Macgibbon and Kee, 1961. 375 p. Illus.

A valuable biographical account particularly useful for insights into the Hercegovinian society from which the author stems.

2654. Edwards, Lovett F. Introducing Yugoslavia. London, Methuen, 1954. 255 p.

A fine general account by a writer who lived in Yugoslavia more than 15 years. Contains a useful annotated bibliography of general works.

2655. Evans, Arthur J. Through Bosnia and the Herzegovina on Foot during the Insurrection, August and September 1875. London, Longmans, Green, 1876. 435 p. Illus., map.

A valuable historical account of contemporary social conditions, by the distinguished archaeologist.

2656. Garašanin, M., and J. Kovačević. Pregled materijalne kulture južnih Slovena u ranom srednjem veku (Survey of the material culture of the South Slavs in the early Middle Ages). Beograd, Prosveta, 1950. 239 p. Bibliography, illus.

A primary concern in this useful survey is the origins ("ethnogenesis") of the South Slavs. An excellent annotated bibliography lists 232 items. The subject is treated in a somewhat different perspective in Etnologija naroda Jugoslavije. Materijalna kultura (Ethnology of Yugoslavia's peoples. The material culture) by Petar Vlahović (Beograd, Filozofski fakultet, 1968, 192 p., bibliographies).

2657. Goričar, Jože. On Some Problems of Methodology in Yugoslav Empirical Sociology. In Puhan, Ivo, and Seymour Gross, eds. Selected Problems of Social Sciences and Humanities; Papers From the Yugoslav-American Colloquium, Ohrid, 1962. Bloomington, Indiana University Press; Skopje, University of Skopje, 1963. 160 p.

Discusses the applicability of Western sociological concepts to Yugoslav problems. For related discussions of sociological theory in Yugoslavia see Predrag Vranički's "Socialism and the Problem of Alienation" in Praxis, v. 1, 1965: 307-317. In the same journal see also Mihailo Marković's "Man and Technology," v. 2, 1966: 343-352, and Vojin Milić's "A Contribution to the Theory of Social Conflict," v. 1, 1965: 536-550.

The viewpoint of a Yugoslav sociologist who is also an administrator is expressed in Anton Vratuša's "The Sociologists and the Policy Makers in Yugoslavia" in Transactions of the Fifth World Congress of Sociology (Washington, D.C., September 1962), v. 1: 45-58. Additional discussions of Yugoslav society by Yugoslav social scientists can be found in the journal Socialist Thought and Practice (Belgrade); e.g., in articles such as "Socialism and Class Change" by Miroslav Pečujlić (v. 27, 1967: 3-37), and "Revaluation of Intellectual Work" by Dušan Popović (v. 27, 1967: 38-53).

2658. Gt. Brit. Naval Intelligence Division. Yugoslavia. Norwich, Eng.,

- Jarrold and Sons, 1944-1945. 3 v. (Its Geographical Handbook Series)

Useful background materials in volume two on the people (ch. 3), social conditions (ch. 4), and public health (ch. 7), and in volume three on growth and distribution of population (ch. 1).

2659. Kojić, Branislav. Seoska arhitektura i rurizam (Village architecture and "rural urbanism"). Beograd, Građevinska knjiga, 1958. 204 p. Bibliography, illus., maps.

Considers Yugoslavia and especially Serbia from the point of view of the human geographer and architect. Concerned with types of structures and settlement patterns in their overall socio-economic context. Many excellent diagrams, including plans for the future. The author's earlier Stara gradska i seoska arhitektura u Srbiji (Old urban and village architecture in Serbia) (Beograd, Prosveta, 1949, 190 p.) deals with the 18th and 19th centuries, with diagrammatic presentation of changing styles.

2660. Miličić, Mirko. Nepoznata Dalmatija (Unknown Dalmatia). Zagreb, Arhitekt, 1935. 202 p. Illus.

Study of Dalmatian house types, settlement patterns, and home industries. Many illustrations and diagrams.

2661. Tomašić, Dinko. Personality and Culture in Eastern European Politics. New York, George W. Stewart, 1948. 249 p. Map. Bibliography: p. 239-249.

An émigré Croat sociologist's view of Yugoslav nationality questions. Useful annotated bibliography.

2662. Tornquist, David. Look East, Look West; the Socialist Adventure in Yugoslavia. New York, Macmillan, 1966. 310 p. Illus.

See also entry no. 2184.

An account by an American writer who worked as translator for a Belgrade publishing firm in the early '60s, with interesting information on aspects of urban living conditions and on the operation of Workers' Councils in different kinds of enterprises.

2663. West, Rebecca. Black Lamb and Grey Falcon; a Journey Through Yugoslavia. New York, Viking Press, 1941. 2 v. Plates, ports., maps. Bibliography: p. 1151-1158.

See also entry no. 2185.

The classic travel account of Yugoslavia in the interwar period, politically biased but sensitive and perceptive. Contains a short but useful bibliography.

2664. The Yugoslav Commune. International Social Science Journal, v. 12, 1961, no. 3: 379-469.

A general discussion with articles by Yugoslav social scientists. For an analytical appraisal viewing the commune as a device for resolving regional interests see Jack C. Fisher's "The Yugoslav Commune" in World Politics, v. 16, 1964, no. 3: 418-444. Fisher discusses urban communes in "City Planning and Housing Administration in Yugoslavia" in Urban Affairs Quarterly, Dec. 1965: 1-13.

B. RURAL LIFE AND PROBLEMS

2665. Bićanić, Rudolf. Occupational Heterogeneity of Peasant Families in the Period of Accelerated Industrialization. In World Congress of Sociology, 3rd, Amsterdam, 1956. Transactions, v. 4, 1956: 80-96.

A good survey of the situation of peasant-workers, i.e., those who own and work land while holding jobs in industry.

2666. Halpern, Joel M. Farming as a Way of Life: Yugoslav Peasant Attitudes. In Karcz, Jerzy, ed. Soviet and East European Agriculture. Berkeley, University of California Press, 1967. p. 356-391.

Evaluates economic and political factors involved in both forcing and attracting peasants off the land. For a discussion of the problems of the transitional status of the peasant-worker see the author's "Yugoslav Peasant Society in Transition — Stability in Change" in The Anthropological Quarterly, v. 36, July 1963: 156-182; for biographical accounts see "The Process of Modernization as Reflected in Yugoslav Peasant Biographies," Kroeber Anthropological Society (Berkeley), Special Publication, no. 1, 1967: 109-126.

2667. Halpern, Joel M. Peasant Culture and Urbanization in Yugoslavia. Human Organization, v. 24, Summer 1965: 162-174.

Considers the impact of peasant culture on urban life and also compares the growth and development of Zagreb and Belgrade. For similar problems discussed from the viewpoint of the urban geographer see Jack C. Fisher's "Planning the City of Socialist Man," in Journal of the American Institute of Planners, v. 28, no. 4, Nov. 1962: 251-265.

2668. Hrženjak, Juraj, ed. Društveno kretanje u naselju Jalžabet 1945-1961 (Social development of Jalžabet village 1945-1961). Sociologija, v. 4, 1962, no. 1-2: 283 p.

Entire issue devoted to a study of a north Croatian village, with articles on historical demography, agricultural economics, health, and social structure. A somewhat parallel study of another Croatian village in Istria, but with emphasis on historical and formal institutional structures is Vjekoslav Bratulić's Rovinjsko selo (Village in the Rovinj region) (Zagreb, Jadranski institut, Jugoslavenska akademija znanosti i umjetnosti, 1959, 206 p.).

2669. Kostić, Cvetko. Seljaci industriski radnici (Peasants as industrial workers). Beograd, Rad, 1955. 250 p.

Surveys the historical background of peasant involvement with industry, the reasons for earlier resistance to off-farm work, and the conflicts involved in residing in the village while working in a factory. A summary of these views appears in English in the author's "Peasant Industrial Workers in Yugoslavia," in Man in India, v. 39: 221-234. Also, the July-September 1953 issue (v. 1) of Sociologija sela is a valuable source for articles on the socioeconomic transformation of village life under the impact of industrialization.

2670. Lodge, Olive. Peasant Life in Yugoslavia. London, Seeley, Service, 1942. 332 p. Illus., map.

The standard English-language source on Yugoslav peasant life in the interwar period.

2671. Marković, Petar J. Strukturne promene na selu kao rezultat ekonomskog razvitka, 1900-1960 (Structural changes in the village as a result of economic development in the period 1900-1960). Beograd, Zadrúžna knjiga, 1963. 164 p. Illus. Bibliography: p. 153-155. See also entry no. 2246.

Sees a gradual enlargement of the social sector in agriculture and increasing peasant involvement with the market and social sector. Extensive use of statistical data. English summary.

2672. Martić, Mirko. Bibliografija sociološke i srodne literature o problemima sela i poljoprivrede (Bibliography of sociological and related literature on village problems and agriculture). Sociologija sela, v. 2, Oct.-Dec. 1963: 91-127.

Useful list of pertinent materials, with both Serbo-Croat and Western language sources.

2673. Stojadinović, Miloslav, ed. Naše selo (Our village). Beograd, Savremena opština, 1929. 604 p. Illus.

A collection of articles by professors and politicians, mainly on Serbia but also dealing with many other areas. A good reflection of the general status of the peasantry and the state of knowledge of village society at this time. Also discusses government plans for rural improvements.

2674. Trouton, Ruth. Peasant Renaissance in Yugoslavia, 1900-1950. London, Routledge and Kegan Paul, 1952. 344 p. Bibliography: p. 325-330.

See also entry no. 2535.

Provides much helpful background information although the interpretations are somewhat journalistic.

2675. Vukosavljević, Sreten V. Istorija seljačkog društva (A history of peasant society). Beograd, Naučna knjiga, 1953. 335 p. (Srpska akademija nauka. Posebna izdanja, 209; Institut za izučavanje sela, 1)

Concerned mainly with landed property and its inheritance, from an historical and legal viewpoint. The role of village level institutions and their relationship to the national state is a principal theme. Based on field data. A subsequent volume (Posebna izdanja, 390, 426 p.) deals with the physical dimensions of village life: settlement patterns, household units, architecture, and relationships to the local agricultural economy. French summaries.

C. URBAN LIFE AND PROBLEMS

2676. Dobrović, Nikola. Urbanizam kroz vekove; (v. 1) Jugoslavija (Urbanism through the centuries; [v. 1] Yugoslavia). Beograd, Naučna knjiga, 1950. 416 p. Illus.

Relates the urban evolution of several hundred Yugoslav towns, in many cases beginning in medieval times. There is a detailed section on Belgrade and a consideration of future planning. Profuse illustrations.

2677. Fisher, Jack C. Urban Analysis: A Case Study of Zagreb, Yugoslavia. In Association of American Geographers. Annals, v. 53, Sept. 1963: 266-284.

An historical case study, including a discussion of current city planning in Zagreb.

2678. Günther, Horst. Die Verstädterung in Jugoslawien. Darstellung und Probleme. Wiesbaden, Harrassowitz, 1966. 224 p. Maps. Bibliography: p. 220-224.

See also entry no. 2208.

2679. Ilić, Miloš. Socijalna struktura i pokretljivost radničke klase Jugoslavije (Social structure and mobility of the Yugoslav working class). Beograd, Institut društvenih nauka, Odeljenje za sociologiju, 1963. 542 p.

A basic study on geographic and occupational mobility in the postwar period. The sample included some 5,000 workers from all the republics. English summary, p. 395-406. For a more recent overview see Vojin Milić's "General Trends in Social Mobility in Yugoslavia" in Acta Sociologica, v. 9, 1965: 116-136.

2680. Kolaja, Jiri T. Workers' Councils: The Yugoslav Experience. New York, Frederick A. Praeger, 1966. 84 p.

Observations based on a 1959 study of two factories in the vicinity of Belgrade.

2681. Kremenšek, Slavko. Kulturna podobna železničarskega naselja na robu Ljubljane pred prvo vojno (Cultural configuration of the railway workers' district of Ljubljana prior to the First World War). Etnološki pregled, no. 6/7, 1965: 81-88.

A unique sociological study of an urban community of peasant origin, maintaining that railroad men, somewhat better off than other groups of workers, had more of a sense of community.

2682. Maksimović, Branko. Urbanizam u Srbiji, osnivanje i rekonstruk- cija varoši u 19om veku (Town planning in Serbia; the founding and reconstruction of towns in the 19th century). Beograd, Građevinska knjiga, 1962. 197 p. Illus., maps.

Documents the efforts at planning during the period of the emergence of the Serbian state when a new urban society was created. English summary, p. 189-192.

2683. International Labor Office. Workers' Management in Yugoslavia. Geneva, 1962. 320 p. Illus., map. (ILO Studies and Reports, New Series, no. 64) Bibliography, p. 311-320.

See also entry no. 2632.

A general description with detailed bibliography. For more detail see chapter four of Adolf Sturmthal's Workers' Councils; a Study of Workplace Organization (Cambridge, Harvard University Press, 1964, 217 p.), which deals with Yugoslavia.

D. FAMILY, WOMEN, YOUTH

2684. Barić, Lorraine. Levels of Change in Yugoslav Kinship. In Freedman, Maurice, ed. Social Organization. London, Cass, 1967. p. 1-24.

Maintains that the extent of communications through kin links brings a wider variety of bilateral kin and affines into day-to-day contact than when kin group, work group, and local community largely coincided.

2685. Burić, Olivera, and Anđelka Zečević. Family Authority, Marital Satisfaction, and the Social Network in Yugoslavia. Journal of Marriage and the Family, May 1967: 325-336.

Presents data to support the conclusion that the higher the social position of the husband, the lower his traditional authority in the family, and the more advanced his education, the lower the wife's satisfaction with marriage. See also Olivera Burić's "Attitudes Regarding the Status of Women in Yugoslavia" in International Social Science Journal, v. 14, 1962, no. 1: 166-174.

2686. Burić, Olivera, and Željka Perak. Bibliografija radova o Jugoslavenskoj porodici 1956-1960 (Bibliography of works on the Yugoslav family, 1956-1960). Sociologija, v. 3, 1966: 137-148.

2687. Đurić, Suzana, and Gordana Dragičević. Women in Yugoslav Society and Economy. Translated by Anđelija Vujović. Beograd, Međunarodna politika, 1965. 35 p.

2688. Erlich, Vera St. Family in Transition, a Study of 300 Yugoslav Villages. Princeton, Princeton University Press, 1966. 469 p.

A useful prewar survey of family relationships, based on material collected from village teachers; substantially a translation of the author's Porodica u transformaciji (Family in transition) (Zagreb, Naprijed, 1964, 490 p.). See also Raymond E. Crist's "The Peasant Problem in Yugoslavia" in Scientific Monthly, May, 1940: 385-402, for economic background on roughly the same period.

2689. Filipović, Milenko S. Nesrodnička i predvojena zadruga (The zadruga of nonrelatives and the split zadruga). Beograd, Smiljeva, 1945. 61 p.

Considers the role of nonrelatives in the formation of household units in the culturally different regions of Yugoslavia.

2690. Filipović, Milenko S. Symbolic Adoption among the Serbs. Ethnology, v. 4, 1965, no. 1: 66-71.

Treats a form of ritual kinship in which an individual substitutes for a deceased person in assuming fictive bonds of kinship with the family of the latter.

2691. Filipović, Milenko S. Vicarious Paternity among Serbs and Croats. Southwestern Journal of Anthropology, v. 14, Summer 1958: 156-167.

Considers institutional forms whereby barren women can conceive by men other than their husbands.

2692. Hammel, Eugene A. Serbo-Croatian Kinship Terminology. In Kroeber Anthropological Society. Papers, no. 16, Spring 1957: 45-75.

Collates terminology from 10 sources (informants and literature) on Serbia, Croatia, and Slavonia.

2693. Mosely, Philip E. The Distribution of the Zadruga Within South-Eastern Europe. In Jewish Social Studies. Publication, no. 5, 1953: 219-230.

Identifies three regional zadruga types.

2694. Mosely, Philip E. The Peasant Family: The Zadruga or Communal Joint-Family in the Balkans and Its Recent Evolution. In Ware, C. F., ed. The Cultural Approach to History. New York, Columbia University Press, 1940. p. 95-108.

See also entry no. 225.

A very useful introduction to the South Slav extended family.

2695. Pušić, Eugene. The Family in the Process of Social Change in Yugoslavia. Sociological Review, v. 5, Dec. 1957: 207-224.

Relates historical and legal factors to aspects of contemporary changes.

2696. Lodge, Olive. Socio-Biological Studies in the Balkans. Population, v. 1, Nov. 1934: 55-82; v. 2, Nov. 1935: 111-148.

Concerned mainly with infant and maternal mortality, with data based on visits to individual villages.

1961-1962 (Regional origins of Yugoslav [university] students in 1961-1962). Beograd, Institut društvenih nauka, Centar za demografska istraživanja, 1964. 126 p.

Correlates students' places of permanent residence and their place of education. English summary. A related work, also with English summary is Vojin Milić's "Socijalno poreklo učenika srednjih škola i studenata" (Social origins of secondary school pupils and university students) in Statistička revija, no. 1/2, 1959: 43-87.

2698. Rayner, Louise. Women in a Village. London, William Heinemann, 1957. 247 p.

An Englishwoman's account of life in a village near Belgrade during the German occupation.

2699. Sicard, Émile. La zadruga Sud-Slave dans l'évolution du groupe domestique. Paris, Éditions Ophrys, 1943. 705 p.

The most comprehensive study of the zadruga available, with a wealth of field observations and detailed historical data. The author worked in Yugoslavia from 1935 to 1941, returning after the war to prepare a second volume dealing with both urban and rural family groups: Problèmes familiaux chez les Slaves du sud (Paris, Éditions familiales de France, 1947, 207 p.). He also considers the zadruga in Serbian fiction in his La zadruga dans la littérature Serbe, 1850-1912 (Paris, Éditions Ophrys, 1943, 137 p.).

mer road construction projects, based in part on a questionnaire survey. French summary, p. 333-344.

E. SPECIAL ASPECTS

2702. Georgeoff, John. Nationalism in the History of the Textbooks of Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. Comparative Education Review, v. 10, Oct. 1966: 422-450.

Interesting comparisons, emphasizing the ways in which school texts present the history of their own country and virtually ignore that of the neighboring nation.

2703. Johnson, Chalmers A. Peasant Nationalism and Communist Power: the Emergence of Revolutionary China, 1937-1945. Stanford, Stanford University Press, 1962. 256 p.

Interesting comparisons are made between the Chinese and Yugoslav experiences (p. 156-175).

2704. Kostić, Darinka M. Promene u društvenom životu kolonista (Changes in the social life of colonists). Beograd, Institut društvenih nauka, 1963. 126 p.

Compares a group of colonists who migrated after the war from Montenegro to Vojvodina with others who remained in their place of origin. English summary. For specific studies of individual immigrant communities in Vojvodina see the several monographs published by Matica srpska (Novi Sad) and written by Branislav Bukovar (1957), by Branislav Rusić (1958), by Jovan Trifunovski (1958), by Milorad Vasović (1959); and for a general statement see Milenko S. Filipović's Proučavanje naseljavanja Vojvodine (Investigations of the settling of Vojvodina) (1958, 20 p.).

2705. Petrović, Aleksandar. Banjane, Socijalno-zdravstvene i higijenske prilike (Banjane; public health and hygiene conditions). Beograd, Biblioteka Centralnog higijenskog zavoda, 1932. 160 p. (Zbornik zdravstvenih proučavanja i ispitivanja sela i narodnog života, v. 11)

An early public health study notable for its emphasis on village nutrition and peasant budgets. In the same series and by the same author are: Raspored radnog vremena u jednoj seoskoj porodici u Rušnju (Arrangement of work schedules in a Rušan peasant family) (v. 14, 1934, 41 p.), and Rakovica, Socijalno-zdravstvene i higijenske prilike (v. 2, 1939, 169 p.). The latter is similar to the Banjane study but includes a useful new section on the medical and social-psychological problems of peasant women.

2706. Vukanović, T. P. The Gypsy Population in Yugoslavia. Journal of the Gypsy Lore Society, v. 42, 1963, no. 1: 10-27.

Presents statistical data on the distribution and economic status of Gypsy groups in Yugoslavia in 1948 and 1953, based largely on census materials.
