Adoption Institute Mission

The Donaldson Adoption Institute’s mission is to provide leadership that improves laws, policies, and practices – through sound research, education and advocacy – in order to better the lives of everyone touched by adoption.

Our Principles and Values

- Every child needs and deserves a permanent family.
- Adoption is a natural, beneficial way to form a family.
- Everyone’s needs in the Extended Family of Adoption must be respected.
- Openness and honesty are critical; deception and coercion are undermining.
- Practices must adhere to high ethical standards and be free from profiteering.

THE INTERNET’S TRANSFORMATIVE IMPACT ON ADOPTION

POLICY & PRACTICE PERSPECTIVE

December 2012
Jeanne A. Howard, Ph.D.
Caveats and Context

- The internet’s greatest impact to date is on infant adoption, where the most money is at stake.
- A lot of good, thoughtful, ethical practice occurring.
- Dubious/unethical/illegal activities have always gone on, but now the opportunities are far greater.
- Our goals: generate a national discussion on impact, regulation and protections – and instigate change.
For Now, More Questions than Answers

- Adoption Practice: What’s the impact on ethical professionals when internet providers promise babies quickly and incentives to pregnant women?
- Search and Reunion: What should professionals tell clients? What should parents tell their kids? What guidance, support, resources does everyone need?
- Law and Policy: How do we address possibly unsafe or traumatizing contacts for children? Do legal obstacles to acquiring information make sense?
- More and More: How do we best utilize all the new opportunities, resources, research and supports?
So . . . How Profound Is the Internet’s Impact?

“This is a secret family recipe. Speaking of family secrets, you were adopted.”
A Lay of the Land: Principal Findings in Year One

- There’s a growing “commodification” of adoption and a shift away from the perspective that its primary purpose is to find families for children; it’s especially the case in infant adoption.

- Finding birth relatives is becoming increasingly easy and commonplace, with significant institutional and personal implications.
  - Likely end of the era of “closed” adoption.
  - Growth in relationships between families.
Principal Findings (cont.)

- A growing number of minors have contact and/or relationships with birth relatives, often without guidance, preparation or parents’ knowledge.
- A rising number of sites that improve the prospects of adoption for “waiting” children, notably including those with special needs.
- More and more places to get information, education, networking, services and resources.
- Additional benefits such as greater opportunities for affiliation, support and information-sharing.
The Good (Benefits)

- Internet is immediate, efficient and private
- In foster realm, better recruitment and placement
- Resources, research, support more available than ever: Rudd, Adoption Institute, ALP, Gateway, etc.
- Expectant/first/birth parents: affiliation, options info, cautions, connections to others like them
- Pre-adoptive/adoptive parents: guidance, specific knowledge (ex., LGBT), post-adopt services
- Adopted persons: exploration on adoption/selves, affiliation, search and reunion, advocacy
The Bad and the Ugly (Risks)

- Internet is immediate, efficient and not-so-private.
- Commerce/profits over child (and adult) welfare, including aggressive and extensive marketing.
- Sometimes-singular focus on doing it quickly rather than thoughtfully, ethically and well.
- Exorbitant fees, babies who don’t exist or go to the highest bidder, inability to identify red flags.
- Lack of options counseling/guidance for expectant mothers; instead, recruitment and inducements.
- Who will keep the records for the future?
A Prism for Assessment: Accepted Ethical/Best Practices

- Preparation, counseling and representation of prospective parents and expectant mothers/fathers
- Education, resources about openness/relationships
- Transparency regarding payments and services
- Non-coercive (including financial) procedures
- Access to post-adoption resources for all parties
- Supervision and boundaries for children’s safety when adopted from foster care
What is Happening with Infant Adoption on the Internet?

“Complete your domestic adoption, on average, within 3-12 months.”
“We connect with states where birth parents cannot revoke consent.”

* Learn more about the safe alternative to abortion... adoption.
* Financial assistance is available. * FREE housing is available.
Agency A: “Most couples were selected in less than FOUR months as a result of marketing & extensive Nationwide Internet advertising specifically targeting suitable Birthparents knowing the Internet is the most widely used medium of this demographic. ... We spend millions yearly advertising to pregnant women using aggressive grassroots marketing and outreach programs.”

Agency B “aggressively reaches out to more Birthmothers. Unlike many state-regulated agencies B is not confined by state-mandated budget restrictions. B spends over $1m in advertising for Birthmothers annually. As a result of these extensive advertising and outreach efforts, most matches are made in less than 9 months. With a track record like that, it is no wonder hundreds of families turn to B each year to realize their dreams.”
Nondirective Options?

- Site X offers help to pregnant women in crisis, explaining that they have a range of options, then (accompanying photos of affluent, happy couples in their lovely homes) asks questions including:
  * Can I provide financially for my child?
  * Will my child have a father figure in his life?
  * Will I have time to properly care for a child?

- Another section of the site offers “Facts and Myths” about abortion, adoption and parenting.
  * Fact on abortion: “Over 70% of women have negative feelings.”
  * Fact on parenting: “You cannot rely on family members to help.”

Testimonial
I'm so glad for having made the contact. I think this will be one of the most amazing experiences of my life - and hers too. Even though sometimes it has been painful to relive the past, it has also been very healing for her and that has been the ultimate reward!

Many, many thanks,

Story after Story Like These

“I read a story in Time in which Mr. Pertman talked about the phenomenon of [search] through social media. Last night, my 12-year-old daughter’s birth family contacted her through Facebook. We are devastated. She wants very much to meet them. ... What advice and literature can you provide us to deal with this? It is living hell.”

“I had been looking for my mother and siblings, if I had them, for years ... Finally, with Facebook, I found them and they have added immeasurable joy to my life. My adoptive family is still my `real’ family but now I have more.”
A Tiny Glimpse at the New World

I am looking for my birth parents, I was born in Akron Ohio on or around 4-14-1965 and adopted by two loving parents in Toledo Ohio. .... I am searching for my niece and nephew. My nephew was born May 4, 1993 and my niece was born June 21, 1994. Their names were … I am searching for my adopted brother, born 1/11/1960 at the Florence Crittenton home in Sioux city Iowa [and] adopted out at birth in Woodbury County/Sioux City Iowa … I'm looking for my biological grandparents. My Mother, Angela was born December 30 1969. She says she was told she was adopted from Warren County N.C. She says she thinks her first name was "Gwendolyn" …
I AM LOOKING FOR MY DAUGHTER

In a Nutshell, What’s Happening Out There . . .

- There are more reunions and more relationships, giving people what they’ve wanted and needed for too long. But some searchers are children without counseling, supervision or, sometimes, even parental knowledge.

- There are more resources, more opportunities for permanency for children with special needs and older youth. But there also are practices that are dubious at best, untrained practitioners, antiquated laws, etc.

- Some children’s safety – emotional, psychological and perhaps physical – may be put at risk.

- What else?
How Big a Deal is Internet’s Impact?

- Traditional adoption practice is probably at risk.
- Era of secrecy/closure is probably near its end.
- Extended Family of Adoption is coming fast.

What Do We Need?

- Research for knowledge, tools, best practices.
- Info and training for professionals and parents.
- Updated laws, policies, practices.
Practice Recommendations

- Key organizations, experts should convene to devise best practice and identify needed guidance/materials.
- Education, training programs by and for professionals should be developed, then provided to all clients.
- Professional curricula, training should be revised to reflect reality many/most adoptions will be “open” to some extent, then give clients commensurate info.
- Practitioners should get training, devise materials that enable them to better assist growing number of triad members coming to them for search/reunion help.
Policy and Law Recommendations

- State and federal policymakers should commission research, hold hearings and implement legal/policy changes to minimize risks and offer protections.
- Policy and law-enforcement officials should monitor internet activity and take action against exploitation, fraud and other illegal and unethical practices.
- Social media and internet companies should conduct and enable research and implement appropriate policies and practices on issues raised in this report.
- Laws that impede or prevent parties to adoption from gaining important information should be repealed.
Conclusion

The list of positive, negative and complicated changes occurring in the world of adoption as a result of the Internet goes on and on, with many already in place and others still evolving. The common denominator among them is that they are not best practices derived from lessons learned from research and experience; rather, overwhelmingly, they are transformations that are happening simply because new technology enables them to happen.
