The Developmental Needs of Off-Campus Students

What is Student Development Theory?

“The way that a student grows, progresses, or increases his or her developmental capabilities as a result of enrollment in an institution of higher education.”

(Evans et al., 2010)
Off Campus Journey: Sanford’s Challenge and Support (1966)

Proposed three developmental conditions: readiness, challenge, and support.

Typical challenges experienced by Off Campus Students include:

- Learning How to Select a Living Space; searching, leases, inspection
- Negotiating Housemate, Neighbor, and Community relationships and expectations
- Acquiring knowledge to self-care: cooking, cleaning, emergency preparations, budgeting

Development occurs when challenges (optimal dissonance) are balanced by supports.
Off Campus Journey: Chickering’s Seven Vectors

Chickering proposed seven vectors of development that contribute to the formation of identity. He believed that “theory can give us the lenses to see … developmental … changes and help move development forward.

1. Developing Competence Three-tined pitchfork: tines = intellectual competence, physical and manual skills, interpersonal competence, handle = “sense of competence”

2. Managing Emotions Ability to recognize, accept, express, and control emotions

3. Moving Through Autonomy Toward Interdependence Increased emotional independence, recognition of interconnectedness with others
Chickering Continued...

4. Developing Mature Interpersonal Relationships
development of intercultural / interpersonal tolerance, appreciation of differences capacity for healthy, lasting relationships

5. Establishing Identity: CENTRAL TO ALL OTHER VECTORS includes comfort with appearance, gender, sexual orientation, heritage, self-concept, abilities and roles, constructive feedback, and increase in personal stability

6. Developing Purpose clear vocational goals, meaningful commitments to activities, interests, and other people intentionally making and sticking to decisions, even in the face of opposition

7. Developing Integrity humanizing values – interests of others balanced with own interests personalizing values – values are affirmed, others’ beliefs acknowledged and respected developing congruence – values and actions become congruent, self-interest balanced by sense of social responsibility

APPENDIX
After completing the training, students can:
• Print a certificate for landlords.
• Find a place to rent, locate housemates, and sign a lease.
• Know important Landlord-Tenant, Massachusetts General, and Town of Amherst Bylaws.
• Know about the University’s expectations for behavior off campus and the consequences and costs for misconduct and arrests.
• Know where to get more information.
• Be ready to move in, set up utilities, and meet the neighbors!
Heat
The costs for heat vary according to the source: electric, oil, natural gas, the maintenance of the facility, and level of use. These are some items to note if you are going to pay for heat:
Do the windows and doors close tightly and lock?
Are there storm windows and storm doors?
Can you and your housemates agree on a comfortable temperature setting?
How recently was the oil burner inspected and cleaned?
How much do the current tenants pay for heat? Ask them!

On a Budget?
Contact the gas, oil, or electric company and ask if a level billing contract or a "budget" plan is available. If you heat with oil, you can join the Pioneer Valley Oil Co-op for $10 and purchase heating oil at a discount.
