UMOP 13 is intended to be a general collection of papers from all areas of current theoretical linguistic research.

Issues in syntactic theory are treated in "Dislocation in English" by James Blevins, "A Study of the Chinese Reflexive Ziji" by Tong Shen and "Case and Verbal Agreement as Argument Numbering" by Anne Vainikka.

Topics in formal semantics are explored in "The Semantic Interpretation of Unconditionals" by Ilan Hazout and "Genericity and Indefinite NP's" by Karina Wilkinson.

Phonological theory and the interaction of phonology and morphology are well-represented by "Cooccurrence Restrictions on Consonants in Some Polynesian Languages" by Noriko Kawasaki, "On the Representation of the Affricate" by Linda Lombardi "Prosodic Morphology and Templatic Morphology" by John McCarthy and Alan Prince and "Phonology of Sino-Japanese Morphemes" by Koichi Tateishi.

In keeping with a dubious UMOP tradition, this volume is long overdue. The editors wish to express the tremendous debt of gratitude which we owe to Juli Carter, without whom it might never have been finished and certainly would not have been so painless to complete. Thanks also to all our contributors for their patience.
