Winterthur Fellowships

Winterthur Fellowships: Winterthur Museum, Garden, and Library invites applications for its 2000-2001 residential research fellowship program. A number of fellowships are available: NEH fellowships: Available to scholars pursuing advanced research, 4-12 months, $2500 per month; McNeil Dissertation Fellowships: Available to Ph.D. candidates, 1-2 semesters, $6500 per semester; Robert Lee Gill and Winterthur Research Fellowships: Available to academic and independent scholars and museum and public history professionals, 1-3 months, $1500 per month. Winterthur's library collections include half a million imprints, manuscripts, visual materials and printed ephemera that support research in the seventeenth through the early twentieth centuries. Winterthur's museum collection includes 89,000 domestic artifacts and works of art made or used in America to 1860. Winterthur's resources will support a wide variety of research topics including: history of American fine and decorative art; history of craft and craftsmanship; history of the family, domestic life, and childhood; refinement and consumerism; travel and tourism; historic preservation and popular memory; history of advertising, and many other topics in American art history, social and cultural history, and material culture. The application deadline for the 2000-01 academic year is Jan. 15, 2000.
