Focusing primarily on post-Ferguson events, I spotlight the ways that Black people have used Black Twitter and other digital counterpublics to engage in forms of pedagogy that reorganize relations of surveillance, reject rigid respectability politics, and contest the erasure of marginalized groups within the Black community.Accession Number: WOS:000423324600010Language: EnglishDocument Type: ArticleAuthor Keywords: race; identity; activism; social; diversity; popular culture; racism; poverty; urban; violence; Black males; subjects; cultureKeyWords Plus: RESPECTABILITYAddresses: [Hill, Marc Lamont] Temple Univ, Media Cities & Solut, Philadelphia, PA 19122 USA.Reprint Address: Hill, ML (reprint author), Temple Univ, Dept Media Studies & Prod, 2020 N 13th St, Philadelphia, PA 19122 USA.E-mail Addresses: marclamonthill@temple.eduPublisher: CORWIN PRESS INC A SAGE PUBLICATIONS COPublisher Address: 2455 TELLER RD, THOUSAND OAKS, CA 91320 USAWeb of Science Categories: Education & Educational Research; Urban StudiesResearch Areas: Education & Educational Research; Urban StudiesIDS Number: FT7HXISSN: 0042-0859eISSN: 1552-834029-char Source Abbrev.: URBAN EDUCISO Source Abbrev.: Urban Educ.Source Item Page Count: 17Output Date: 2019-06-19
