

African Diaspora Archaeology Newsletter

Volume 11
Issue 1 March 2008

Article 19

3-1-2008

93rd Annual ASALH Conference: Carter G. Woodson and the Origins of Multiculturalism

Follow this and additional works at: <http://scholarworks.umass.edu/adan>

Recommended Citation

(2008) "93rd Annual ASALH Conference: Carter G. Woodson and the Origins of Multiculturalism," African Diaspora Archaeology Newsletter: Vol. 11 : Iss. 1 , Article 19.
Available at: <http://scholarworks.umass.edu/adan/vol11/iss1/19>

This Conference is brought to you for free and open access by ScholarWorks@UMass Amherst. It has been accepted for inclusion in African Diaspora Archaeology Newsletter by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks@UMass Amherst. For more information, please contact scholarworks@library.umass.edu.

93rd Annual ASALH Conference: Carter G. Woodson and the Origins of Multiculturalism

The Association for the Study of African American Life and History is soliciting papers for its 93rd Annual Conference. The conference theme foregrounds early twentieth century efforts to promote the vision that true democracy requires tolerance of cultural differences. Through painstaking research chronicling the historical contributions of African Americans to the growth and development of the United States, Carter G. Woodson played a prominent role in laying the foundation for a rethinking of American identity and for contemporary multicultural discourses.

Submissions are encouraged that address the origins, evolution, and implications of various concepts of multiculturalism. The theme allows for broad and varied discussions of the implications of contemporary approaches to multiculturalism for people of African descent across the world.

ASALH invites scholars from all disciplines to make presentations in Birmingham on African and African American life, history, thought, and culture from the Atlantic coast of West Africa to the Caribbean Islands, Latin America, and the United States. Preference will be given to session proposals that address the specific conference theme; however, submissions addressing other important topics are invited and will be gladly received. ASALH supports and values all scholarship examining the history and lives of peoples of African descent.

The deadline for submissions is April 30, 2008.

All proposals must be submitted electronically to ASALH. For information on how to make electronic submissions, please visit www.asalh.org/93rdconvention.html, or contact the Academic Program Chair, James B. Stewart, at js8@psu.edu.